Hello CTK Parish!

As a FOCUS missionary, one of the questions I get asked most often is, “So what exactly do you do?” The big goal is this: I and the other FOCUS missionaries are here at the University of Montana to invite college students into a growing relationship with Jesus Christ and His Catholic Church, and seek to inspire and equip them to live a life in relationship with Him and in service of His Church. This is a pretty far-reaching job description! But we do this practically in a few simple ways each week. Our primary goal is to spend as much time with UM students as possible, wherever they are when they aren’t in class: on the Oval, in coffee shops and restaurants, and on hiking and biking trails, just to name a few common places. In spending time with students in these places, we begin to cultivate real friendships, hearing about their needs and concerns, introducing them to our friends and to each other, and inviting them to Mass and prayer with us—in short, we grow a Christ-centered community among students where they can feel known and loved, by us and by each other. Over time, we strengthen these friendships and build up this community by inviting students to participate in weekly small group Bible studies, where we encounter the Word of God together in community and consider how it can empower us to live with joy, hope, and purpose—three things that many college students struggle to have in our modern age. Eventually we begin to develop mentoring relationships with the students we work with, meeting to discuss how together we can concretely grow in our prayer lives, service to others, and daily walk with Jesus Christ on and off campus. We are so thankful for the opportunity to serve in this important mission of bringing hope and love to college students here in Missoula, and so thankful for all of your support here at the parish!
